Symposium 1997

Description

Managing the Resources of the Worldâ??s Forests (1997)

Lectures given at the 1997 Marcus Wallenberg Prize Symposium held in Stockholm on October 14, 1997.

Introduction by the Chairman

Dr. BjÃ¶rn HÃ¤gglund, President Stora Forest AB, Falun, Sweden

Trees past, present and future â?? key to sustainability

Dr. Norman E. Johnson, Senior Vice President, Weyerhaeuser Company, Tacoma, WA, USA

Not by wood alone â?? how wood production can be consistent with social and environmental demands

Stephen Bass, Director, Forestry and Land Use, International Institute for Environment and Development, London, UK

Recent status and further development of the Finnish multi-source forest inventory

Professor Erkki Tomppo, recipient of the 1997 Marcus Wallenberg Prize, Finnish Forest Research Institute, Helsinki, Finland

Practical use of the multi-source forest inventory system under Central European conditions

Dr. Franz-Albert Eisele, Head of Forest Sector, North Rhine-Wesphalia Ministry of Environment, Regional Planning and Agriculture, Germany

New methodologies to assess wood production and environmental status of the worldâ??s forests

Professor Bo Ranneby, Swedish University of Agricultural Sciences, UmeÃ¥, Sweden